

JOGS | JOGS – Junior Obstetrics and Gynaecology Society

is a non-profit organisation established in 1988 to unite and represent the interests of Obstetrics and Gynaecology trainees in Ireland and to provide a forum for discourse and research.

JOGS works in close collaboration with RCPI – IOG (Royal College of Physicians of Ireland – Institute of Obstetrics and Gynaecology), RCOG (Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists) and ENTOG (European Network of Trainees in Obstetrics and Gynaecology) and is represented on these committees.

JOGS operates on an entirely voluntary basis, administered by a committee elected by its members and receives financial support from donations, sponsorship and remittances from conferences held in conjunction with RCPI – IOG.

WHAT CAN JOGS OFFER
YOU?

We are interested in promoting events that are of particular interest to Obstetrics and Gynaecology trainees in Ireland.

As the only Obstetrics & Gynaecology trainee organisation in Ireland, we are in contact with most of the Irish trainees via our large email database. We frequently connect with our trainees through our mailing list, WhatsApp group and social media.

We offer advertising of event on our website and promoting it on our Twitter account. There is a possibility to put a banner and information about the event. With our large membership base, we believe we can boost your event attendance substantially.

HOW CAN WE COLLABORATE?

Possibilities of cooperation include:

- Promotion of activities of common interest
- Free spot(s) for trainee(s)
- Discount on the registration fee for our trainees

A formal agreement of our collaboration would be acknowledged by signing a Memorandum of Understanding.
